

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a wireless network service provision method of providing communication services including internet connection by permitting access to a predetermined access point in a
5 limitative area via wireless LAN or like local wireless interface, when a user subscribed to the communication service system accesses the pertinent access point, payload processing is executed in unique processing method to each user, and each user is discriminated according to data of the processed parts.